

The most damaging scandal in the history of the Democratic party is the one now being unfolded in the Department of Internal Revenue.

A total of 49 collectors, assistants and employees, have either resigned or been dismissed; 5 cases have been turned over to the Department of Justice, and the investigation steadily widens.

We say this scandal is "most damaging" because the tax collector is the one federal man with whom the millions of citizens deal directly, and when he turns up sour the taxpayer has indelible proof there's something wrong higher up. Charges of "influence" in big transactions between the government and companies may leave the man in the street cold—but scandal in the internal revenue offices is elementary graft which everyone understands.

And this particular scandal is the kind of thing that occurs only in an aging and decrepit administration — politicians so long in power that they have grown audacious . . . and careless.

In all the years that we have had federal income taxes the Department of Internal Revenue has enjoyed a reputation for honesty and fair dealing among citizens both high and low — until the pressure of confiscatory taxes, coupled with an indifferent administration, blasted the whole setup into the criminal courts.

One case after another discloses the charge that federal revenue officers "traded" with big taxpayers, and for a fee relieved taxpayers big and small who found themselves "over a barrel."

It smells of racketeering, and the country is shaken by the discovery.

The United States is committed to vast undertakings, and a huge debt; taxes to support our very solvency must be collected, without fear or favor — and by one stroke of injecting politics into the tax-gathering machinery the Truman administration has compromised America before its own people and the world.

Two Homes in Hope Damaged by Fires

Two house fires and 4 grass fires resulted in considerable property loss yesterday and early today the Hope Fire Department reported.

At 415 West Division the home of Tully Henry a blaze caused an estimated $400 damage about 3 a.m. today. Most of the damage was on a back porch, firemen said.

At 1101 Ave. B., another house was damaged when a grass fire got out of control. Estimates placed the loss at about $150. The other grass fires caused no damage.

Moscow Again in Warning to Turks

London, Dec. 1 (AP) — Moscow radio broadcast today a new Russian note warning Turkey that joining the North Atlantic Treaty organization (NATO) "will undoubtedly cause serious harm to relations between Turkey and the Soviet union."

Turkey must take all the responsibility for the consequences if she persists in joining NATO, said the note, which Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko handed to the Turkish ambassador in Moscow yesterday.

It was the second in a month accused Turkey of an "aggressive" policy in siding with the United States and 11 European nations which have signed the Atlantic defense pact.

Moscow's new communication rejected Turkey's Nov. 12 reply, to the first note. Turkey had said her only intention in aligning with the West was to defend herself and to aggressive aims were involved.

POWERFUL MAN
Santiago, Chile, Dec. 1 (AP) — Police arrested a man here last night for beating up an opponent in a street fight with such vigor that the latter had to be taken off to the hospital. Papers found on the victim identified him as Juan Guzman—age 103. His adversary is 28.

The shortest safe navigable distance between New York and London is 3,370 miles.

Santa Schedule to Arrive Here 8 p. m. Monday

Monday night marks the arrival of Santa Claus in Hope the old Saint Nick will remain for a week to discuss presents with the kids. He will get to Hope at 8 p. m.

During the following week he will visit downtown twice daily from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m. going into stores. Each day he will broadcast over Station KNAR at 2 and 4 p. m.

Special invitations have been issued to all school children throughout the county to come in groups to see and talk with Santa.

Retail merchants of Hope, sponsors of Santa Claus' visit, have decided to keep downtown stores open until 8 p. m. on December 21-22 and 24.

It was also decided to close the stores on Christmas Day and the following day, December 25 and 26.

Odessa, Texas Combating Polio

Odessa, Tex., Dec. 1 (AP) — This city of nearly 30,000 persons was scheduled to close its business houses Monday for a cleanup drive as the count of polio victims rose to the 50 mark today.

Nine of the victims have died. Four new polio cases were reported yesterday. During November, 38 new cases were diagnosed.

Meanwhile, teachers faced partially empty classrooms yesterday as thousands of students stayed away from school because of the polio situation. The schools normally have approximately 9,800 pupils.

Theaters and churches were asked to discourage attendance of persons under 16.

All able bodied men have asked to take part in Monday's cleanup drive. They will seek to destroy all breeding places of disease bearing insects.

Eight patients are being treated here. The remaining 33 are in Abilene, Big Spring, Plainview, Dallas and San Antonio, Tex.

Many parents have taken their children out of the city to prevent possible contagion. A check of the Odessa American showed the children have been taken to other Texas cities, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Illinois.

Trunk Slayer, Winnie Judd, Recaptured

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 1 (AP) — Tired and dejected, Winnie Ruth Judd, the elusive trunk murderess, was back in the state hospital for the insane today after her fourth escape brought less than 24 hours of freedom.

She was brought back late last night, given warm milk and put to bed in her regular room.

The one-time "tiger woman" who killed two girl friends 20 years ago was as meek as a frightened kitten after being recaptured by police.

Two police officers picked up the 48-year-old trunk murderess three blocks from an apartment court in which two former women attendants of the hospital lived.

Mrs. Judd, wearing a fur coat she had taken from one of the apartments during the occupants' absence, offered no resistance, but pleaded with Patrolmen George Sanders and Harold DeWitt to turn her loose.

"Why did you have to pick me up?" she asked. "I've served 20 years out there (the hospital) and I think I should be turned loose. I had a tragedy 20 years ago that I wasn't wholly responsible for."

It was in October, 1931, that Mrs. Judd shot her roommates, Agnes Anne LeRio and Hedvig Samuelson, to death here. She shipped their dismembered bodies to Los Angeles. Mrs. Judd was convicted and sentenced to hang. Within 72 hours of the execution time she was found insane and was committed to the hospital.

Mrs. Judd, still an attractive woman with tinted red hair, escaped Thursday night by prying open a second story screen window and sliding to the ground on a ladder fashioned of rags yarn and an electric iron cord.

She spent the cold night huddled behind the apartment court. After Mrs. Ellen Evans left her apartment, Mrs. Judd went in. She ate some fruit, wrote several letters and put on a dress, a jacket and a fur coat.

Mrs. Judd spent the morning in the apartment, then walked downtown, mailed her letters and wandered around until after dark.

Mrs. Evans' report of a burglary sent police into the area of the apartment court.

DeWitt and Sanders noticed a woman with a fur coat standing in front of a house about three blocks from the apartment. They stopped their patrol car and asked for her identification.

"I don't carry any," she replied. After checking the occupants of the house, who said she had never seen Mrs. Judd before, DeWitt said:

"Okay, Ruth, let's go."

Mrs. Judd pleaded to be let go as she was put in the police car.

At police headquarters the frightened and distraught woman was taken to a jail cell to await arrival of hospital officials.

Photographers' flash bulbs flared as Mrs. Judd was hurried to a waiting car. She drove onto the floor of the officers car. Kenneth Moore, wife of a supervisor, opened the door. When Mrs. Moore seated herself, Mrs. Judd arose to the seat and laid her head across Mrs. Moore's lap.

TWO BOYS PERISH

Leatherwood, W. Va., Dec. 1 (AP) — Two frightened boys, rescued by their mother, ran back into their flaming log home yesterday when the woman went back for an 11-month-old daughter.

The mother, Mrs. Ida Milam, 29, jumped to safety with her baby from the other side of the house. The lifeless bodies of the boys, Frankie, 2, and Douglas, 4, were found later in a bedroom.

ESCAPE ARTIST — Hatchet murderess Winnie Ruth Judd, the red-haired "Tiger Woman" who killed her two roommates in double trunk-murder in 1931, escaped for fourth time late yesterday from the Arizona State Hospital. In photo which was taken at the time Miss Judd broke from the hospital in 1939 she is shown talking to Sheriff T. H. Newman, of Yuma, Ariz., after her capture. She was recaptured later Friday night. The county champion club was the Sheppard club. Ten of the nineteen 4-H clubs in the county received honor certificates.

This affair was attended by 61 4-H members, leaders and guests. The principal speaker was Geneva Z. Williams, assistant home demonstration agent of Little Rock, Ark.

Introduced by Hazel T. Trentine, assistant home demonstration agent for Negro work in Hempstead county.

County and state winners were introduced by Walker Fleming, Jr., assistant county agent.

Joe Louis Peoples, 4-H county president, presided.

DUCK SOUP

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 1 (AP) — Hagerstown has solved the problem of the prolific ducks.

Park officials installed a few in a lake in a city park. Soon the ducks increased to the point of overrunning their small home.

They were offered for sale at 30 cents per pound—alive.

Yesterday park officials reported they sold all but 25 to the 200 webfeet.

"This is easier than going out to shoot 'em," remarked one satisfied buyer.

Stock Show at Chicago Closes Today

Chicago, Dec. 1 (AP) — The 1951 International Livestock Exposition closes today after an eight-day run in which prices for championship stock were jolted downward.

Manager William E. Ogilvie estimated nearly a half million visitors will have attended the big show by the end of tonight's program.

A new tremor in price deflation hit yesterday's session when, for the second day running, champion stock was sold at prices far below those of last year.

The grand champion barrow, a 261 pound poland china, was sold by Oscar W. Anderson of Leland, Ill., to Wilson and Company, peckers, at $130 a pound.

Last year's grand champion sold for $310 pound.

The 1951 grand champion, a 145 pound hamshire, was sold by the University of Kentucky at $255 a pound to the stock yards firm of Chicago.

Last year's top wether was auctioned at $5.

Buyers and other officials said government meat price regulations have restrained bidding on prize animals marked for butchering rather than exhibition. Although prize show animals are exempted from ODS controls, the meat they yield after butchering is under price ceiling regulations.

Afternoon and evening horse show events and the parades of prize winning cattle and horses tonight close the exposition.

Won't Ask Money Says Churchill

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP) — Prime Minister Winston Churchill says he is not going to ask for money when he confers with President Truman here next month.

Informed sources said yesterday Churchill has no specific subjects in mind for discussion, but state department officials believe he may bring up:

1. Possibility of a meeting with Stalin.

2. Use of atomic weapons in any major war.

3. The whole strategy of the Russian problem.

4. British-American partnership in world affairs. This could develop into talks about money.

However, Churchill has sent word he is not going to ask for financial assistance for his hard-pressed country.

Big Four Meets to Discuss End to Arms Race

Paris, Dec. 1 (AP) — The Big Four met for an hour today and began in a cordial atmosphere — there secret conversations seeking to end the world arms race.

The Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Y. Vishinsky was seated across the table from U. S. Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, British minister of State Selwyn Lloyd and French Delegate Jules Moch.

All had arrived separately at the office of Louis Padilla Nervo, Mexican president of the United Nations general assembly, who presided over their session.

Padilla Nervo told newsmen the four proponents of rival disarmament plans agreed on rules for getting down to the meat of the matter and decided to meet again Monday morning. No communiqué was issued.

The Mexican statesman said he considered the cordial atmosphere at the first meeting a good omen.

In other U. N. committees today: Twelve of the 14 nations on the collective measures committee agreed upon a resolution which would permit U. N. use of regional treaty forces, such as the North Atlantic pact armies, to resist aggression. The resolution is to be debated in the political committee beginning Monday. Burma and Egypt declined to go along with the draft.

2. The special political committee approved, 50 to five, a Yugoslav resolution calling upon Russia and her satellites to settle their differences with Yugoslavia by peaceful means in accordance with the U. N. charter. The Russian bloc voted no.

Vishinsky arrived on the day at 11 a. m. and grinningly pointed to his watch to show he was on time for the meeting he had taken so long to approve.

The Big Four will try to reconcile rival Soviet and Western plans for disarmament. The talks are meant to be absolutely secret. The idea of Syria, Pakistan and Iraq delegates who proposed them is that full secrecy will let each of the four lay aside his public propaganda speeches and get down to business.

Moch told reporters today's session would be "purely procedural." In view of official secrecy, he said, there would be no communiqué afterward.

As soon as the four entered Padilla Nervo's office, the doors were shut tight and guards took up posts to guarantee privacy. Newsmen and photographers waited outside.

All four negotiators appeared to be in good spirits as they passed into the meeting room overlooking the rain-soaked Trocadero Gardens outside the Palais Chailot.

Jessup smilingly remarked that "the weather is good — it looks fine today — and I hope all goes well."

It was pouring rain outside and the American delegate evidently referred to the weather of international relations.

Allies Alarmed Over Mounting Red Airpower

Reds Building Up Armies of Satellites

Rome, Dec. 1 (AP) — Russia may not have increased her own armed forces lately, but the armies of her satellites are growing by leaps and bounds, eastern intelligence sources report.

One informant for a Western power, which keeps close tab on the Iron Curtain nations, says Red Bulgaria has built up a tough army of between 100,000 and 180,000 men spearheaded by some 500 tanks.

That would be three times the 55,000-man army unit set by Bulgaria's peace treaty with the allies after World War II.

The Bulgarian air force also has been converted to MIG-15 jets, the fighter plane which has proved so effective in Korea, the informant said.

Army morale in Bulgaria is high, he declared, since soldiers and their families get special privileges. The rest of the country's 7,000,000 inhabitants are becoming restless under the communist yoke, however, he added.

This same informant said starving little Albania now in the throes of a depression, has managed to build up an armed force of between 60,000 and 80,000 men.

He reported that Albania lacks Bulgaria's tanks and heavier armament, but the army is tough, well-trained and in good spirits. Here again troops are accorded special favors not granted the rest of Albania's 1,105,000 people.

This report fits in with the general picture of conditions behind the Iron Curtain.

Western sources say the Russians have not been increasing their own forces, but the satellite armies have been strengthened recently.

The training level of both the Russian and satellite armies has been steadily improving, these informants say.

Russia herself is believed to have an army of between 165 and 175 divisions with almost a third of them fully motorized or armored, westerners estimate.

Present dispositions of the Soviet, Bulgarian, Albanian and other satellite armies do not seem to indicate any military strike is in the making, according to this information.

However, the satellites are continuing to push agents into Greece and anti-Communist Yugoslavia.

One informant said that a few months ago Greece destroyed a group of 27 specially picked Greek Communists infiltrating back from Albania. They had 12 expensive radio transmitters with them to send back intelligence to Tirana, the informant said.

First Christian Church to Observe Woman's Day

The women of the First Christian Church will conduct the Evening Service, Sunday, Dec. 2 at 7:30 p. m. This program will celebrate Woman's Day in the church and is done annually.

All Christian Churches throughout the United States will be observing this day with special programs. Mrs. Ted Jones will give the talk, and she has chosen to speak on the women of the Bible.

The special music will be a duet by Mrs. B. L. Rettig and Mrs. Mike Kelly. "He Whispers His Love To Me." Also Mrs. Robert Conway will sing a solo, "My Task." The combined youth and adult choir will sing "A Heart That Can Understand."

The evening offering will be sent off for missionary work. Mrs. Oliver Adams and Mrs. George Wright was the committee named to arrange this program.

Blevins Youth is Injured When Auto Hits Train

An automobile driven by Percy Honey, 20-year-old Blevins boy, crashed into a Frisco Freight train at the West Avenue D crossing about 11 o'clock last night but escaped serious injury.

He was treated for severe cuts and bruises about the head at Josephine Hospital but was released by attending physician Dr. L. M. Lile.

His car, a 1938 Ford, was badly damaged. City Police made the investigation.

As of 1950 there were 227,244 miles of railroad track in the United States.

Talks Again Hit Snag as Chinese Reject Proposal

Munsan, Korea, Dec. 1 (AP) — The United Nations command today disclosed anxiety over mounting Communist air power in Korea. It insisted in the Panmunjon truce talks that construction or repair of air bases in North Korea be banned during an armistice.

The Reds promptly accused the United Nations of trying "to deprive our side forever of the right to defend ourselves."

The air base issue was raised during a stormy Saturday session in which Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief U. N. negotiator, underscored in forceful language the Allied position that there be no military buildup and that joint observation teams be given free access to all Korea to police the truce.

The official U. N. spokesman, Brig. Gen. William P. Nuckols told correspondents that the U. N. Allies are deeply concerned over the threat posed by increasing communist air strength. He said the U. N. command primarily fears the possibility of strong air support for Red ground forces.

Joy told Communist negotiators that airfields were the only type of military facilities the Allies felt must be restricted as part of the U. N. program for preventing a military buildup by either side.

North Korean Lt. Gen. Nam Il insisted it was "necessary" to strengthen air bases.

"I cannot but point out that the real objective of your proposal of allowing no increase of so-called military facilities is merely to deprive our side forever of the right to defend ourselves," he said.

Nuckols said the purpose of Joy's statement opening Saturday's session was to make the Allied position on enforcement of the armistice "crystal clear."

Nuckols emphasized, however, that the statement was "not considered an ultimatum."

Joy told Red envoys the U. N. Allies will continue to insist that there should be:

1. No increase of military forces by either side during an armistice.

2. No buildup of war materials during that period.

3. An armistice commission to supervise the truce, including joint observation teams free to move the length and breadth of Korea, without hindrance or withdrawal of troops from Korea by the armistice conference since the question must be decided by the belligerent governments.

Joy's statement a paper on it added nothing new to the seven principles he proposed last Tuesday as a solution to the third day of the conference agenda—supervision of the truce. But it did emphasize repeated United Nations assertions that these principles will not be modified during the armistice talks.

The Communists already had rejected the United Nations proposals, and Saturday afternoon they again voiced strong objections.

After two hours and 37 minutes of debate, Joy merged from conference tent and told correspondents:

"As you know," Joy said, "I hold a flock of islands off the coast of North Korea. That seems to be a thorn in their side. They have withdrawn from them."

Joy told the Communists that the U. N. Allies have no intention of abandoning the islands.

The chief U. N. negotiator, the Red delegates were "in agreement" in their opposition to allowing inspection teams behind the lines, claiming this would interfere with their internal affairs.

"In other words," he said, "observation principle has run the rocks."

6,319 Vets Are Returning Home

San Francisco, Dec. 1 (AP) — Two transports, carrying a total of 6,319 combat veterans of the Korean war, are scheduled to enter the Golden Gate Monday, the military sea transport service has announced.

One ship, with 4,777 army men aboard—some due for reassignment and leave, others for discharge—will dock at the Fort Mason port of embarkation at San Francisco, MSTS said yesterday.

The other ship, carrying 1,540 enter the gate later in the day and army men and two navy men will proceed directly inland to Camp Stoneman, where the returnees will be processed.

The MSTS also said four transports are arriving in the next few days returning personnel from non-combat areas.

In 1945 there were over 2 million acres in the United States devoted to farming.

Larson Says Hands Clean in Sales Deal

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—General Services Administrator Jess Larson declared last night his hands were clean in a big 1946 war surplus sale. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said reportedly took place without competitive bidding.

The St. Louis paper said yesterday it had been told that Frank Nathan, who was arrested in Pittsburgh in 1949 on a charge of passing false sugar ration documents, got $25,000 from the surplus deal. Pittsburgh police records show no disposition of the Nathan case.

In a copyrighted dispatch from Los Angeles, the paper also reported that H. Turney Gratz, former executive of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., and John Costello described as custodian of the building in Washington housing the Democratic National committee headquarters, were associates of Nathan in a group dealing with surplus materials. They were also named as partners in the particular surplus sale mentioned by the Post-Dispatch.

Gratz told newsmen here the newspaper reference to him was "utterly fantastic" and that he had never heard of the surplus transaction. He said he did not recall "even meeting a man named Frank Nathan."

Costello could not be reached for comment.

The sale reported by the Post-Dispatch was of equipment from the Tarrant, Calif., Aluminum plant operated during the war by the Aluminum Company of America (Alcoa). The plant and its equipment were government owned.

In 1948 Larson headed the war assets administration, charged with disposing of surplus wartime stocks, equipment and plants acquired by the government.

Told of the Post-Dispatch story, Larson issued a statement here saying he had been advised an attempt would be made to involve his administration with the investigation, by a house ways and means subcommittee of the T. Lamar Caudle, ousted former assistant attorney general.

The house probe, not yet finished, has concerned Caudle's role in prosecution of tax cases. The Tarrant surplus sale has not been publicly mentioned. The Post story said it was learned that agents of the internal revenue bureau recently took possession of the books of the firm that sold the Tarrant equipment, to check them "from an income tax angle."

Larson said the Post-Dispatch report was "false and misleading as respects myself and my administration."

Hospital Seeks Delinquent Pay

Little Rock, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Arkansas State hospital is trying to collect more than $1.25 million in delinquent patient accounts.

But, says the attorney who has the job of getting the money, no patients will be turned out of the institution if the accounts are not paid.

"We won't foreclose on any widow's mortgage," James N. Dowell Jr., collection agent for the hospital, said. "But we will seek payment when it can be made."

More than 3,000 delinquent accounts averaging $420 each were turned over to Dowell yesterday. A deputy Putnam county prosecutor, Dowell is handling collections for the hospital as a private attorney. He said the delinquent accounts are for patients whose estates or relatives have not proved that they are unable to pay.

"We will make every effort to handle the cases with understanding," he said, "but if we run into arbitrary refusals when they are obviously able to pay, collection will be sought through court suits."

The maintenance charge is $35 per month. Statements will be mailed to estates and responsible relatives next week, Dowell said.

Young Cripple Leads Robbers

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 30 (AP)—A husky 15-year-old cripple proudly picked locks in the police station today and boasted to officers that he had master-minded two young gangsters in 10 burglaries.

Police said Leo F. Whaley, doomed to life in a wheel chair by an auto accident 11 years ago, was caught burglarizing a home last night. He was booked for investigation of burglary and taken to juvenile detention home.

Police Lt. Leon Carroll said Leo had a complete set of burglary tools, including the "most perfect set of pick keys I've ever seen."

At the police station, the youth demonstrated his prowess by easily opening police file locks.

The youth boasted he had directed or personally led his two gangsters in 10 burglaries. He named them the All-Shots and the FBI-Boud-Balls. The Police didn't attempt to estimate Leo's loot.

Carroll said police were amazed by the boy's docility. At last, picking, "It beats everything," he exclaimed.

Smart "FARMER"

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 1 (AP)—If Lawrence Morago, 20, is guilty of growing marijuana, what does that make the city of Pasadena?

Evidence at his trial yesterday showed he had been growing marijuana in flower pots. When they needed watering, Morago merely set them out at Brookside park and city gardeners took care of the rest.

Morago was sentenced to 90 days in jail.

DOROTHY DIX Snooping Relatives

Dear Miss Dix: Is there any prescription for curing meddling relatives? I am a widow and a professional woman in my early thirties. I have always had a good reputation and social prestige. Several years ago I moved to a small city where I unfortunately have several cousins relatives. Their actions are beginning to wear on my nerves. If I purchase clothes and have a dressmaker alter them, they find an excuse to go to her house. I have always been active in civic, fraternal and religious affairs. Recently, my relatives have acquired pseudo-religion and trail me to church. If I have a date or friends call at my home, these amok are so curious they suddenly need fresh air to the extent of walking or riding in front of my house. They phone or drop in for a visit if we have guests or even turn a light on in the living room. Even my 7-year-old daughter can't leave her friends at our home without inquiries. My parents live with me and are also annoyed by their actions. We have tried ignoring them, insulting them and being excessively polite. Nothing seems to do any good. I would have no difficulty in securing employment in another locality. Even though it means giving up a good home, position, etc., I do not want my life and my child's blighted and thwarted by busybody relatives. Please advise me what to do.

COLLEEN

Answer: Busybodies are the hardiest people in the world to combat; they are absolutely insult-proof, ignoring them only whets their curiosity and politeness is lost on them. So what to do? Changing your position and home would cure the situation but it seems a shame for you to be driven away by your meddling family. They certainly seem to have you covered from any angle so apparently there is no escape whatsoever where you are.

Be Outspoken

You may curb their obvious curiosity by plainspoken announcements to the effect that you are entertaining on a particular night and would prefer no casual calls for that occasion. Furtive snooping, however, is practically incurable.

One case similar to yours was cured by direct attack. The meddlers were informed by their victim that, in order to conserve time and energy, she would hold a family gathering, of perhaps an hour's

Texans Picked Up on Check Charges

Little Rock, Dec. 1 (AP)—Two Texans, wanted on bad check charges in Texas and New Orleans, were arrested here yesterday when one of them tried to cash a worthless check for $10.

Chief of Detectives C. O. Fink identified the men as John J. Dunlap, 24, and his uncle, James B. Lynch, both of Dallas. Fink said both men are wanted in Dallas and Waco, Tex., and Dunlap is wanted in New Orleans.

Fink said Lynch told him that he and Dunlap stole a car in Waco recently, and sold it for $20 in Arkansas. Ark., several days ago. Arkansas state police recovered the car.

The men are being held here on an open charge.

Truman to Preview War Production

Key West, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—President Truman set aside this afternoon for a full-scale review of military production with Defense Mobilization Director Charles E. Wilson.

Wilson's flying visit here from Washington follows complaints by the senate preparedness subcommittee that rearmament is lagging dangerously behind schedule because "guns" have not received priority over "butter."

Mr. Truman told a news conference Thursday that the very best effort is being put forward to meet defense requirements. If military production is lagging, he said, he will soon find out about it and do something about it.

He added that the defense program is under constant review by the cabinet, the national security council and Wilson, and that whatever is necessary will be done.

In Washington yesterday, Wilson said that the effect of the nation's rearmament program will hit home more and more in the months ahead as defense production picks up speed.

"From now on," he said, "it will not be so much a case of guns and butter but of guns and less butter—or guns and margarine."

He spoke to a group of 287 European industrial leaders who have been inspecting American factories for the last two weeks under the sponsorship of the economic cooperation administration (ECA).

Wilson said U. S. arms production now is at an average rate of about $2,000,000,000 a month and will step up to a rate of $4,000,000,000 a month when the program hits its peak in 1953.

Volume production then will "take off," he said, and the nation will concentrate on "quality, invention and improvement" in weapons.

Wilson declared he was confident that the United States could "go on maintaining our military strength for ten years, twenty years, or a century if need be, and absorb the strain in our stride."

The senate preparedness group not only has complained of a lag in defense production, but Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) has disputed defense department contentions that deliveries of U. S. arms to Western European Allies are up to schedule.

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short said that criticisms voiced by the Johnson subcommittee "may come up in the conversations" between the President and Wilson.

He said, however, that arrangements for Wilson to fly here to report were made before the President came to Florida from Washington November 8.

Wilson will fly back to Washington immediately after the conference, Short told reporters.

Murry Takes Poke at State Agencies

Fort Smith, Dec. 1 (AP)—Atty. Gen. Ike Murry suggests that the Arkansas highway department is not the only state agency guilty of "inefficiency, dishonesty, grat and extravagance."

"It just is the only state agency under investigation," he said yesterday in advocating a state house cleaning by an independent agency. Murry, who is expected to run for governor in 1952, spoke before the Noon Civics club here.

It would be well for the taxpayers to know about the whole state setup, including my own department," he said.

Murry said he was not critical of any particular administration. However, in an earlier speech at Fayetteville, Murry called Gov. McMath's defense of the highway department "about as weak an answer as could have been made."

Gov. McMath said Thursday the highway department is being operated "as efficiently as possible."

Lone Survivor Sobs Out a Nightmare Story of Sinking of Yacht and 4-Days Adrift

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 1 (AP)—The only survivor of a yachting tragedy which took eight lives sobbed out last night his story of a four-day nightmare aboard a small lifeboat without food or water.

Negro crewman Gustave Emanuel Frazer, rescuers found the bodies of the yacht's skipper and his wife, and their dying 12-year-old son. Four others died at sea and the yacht's navigator jumped overboard to end his own life.

Frazer had to be given an emergency blood transfusion after he was taken aboard the minesweeper "Token," which sighted the 14-foot lifeboat while on a practice mission yesterday afternoon.

The boy, son of Capt. and Mrs. Samuel A. Luttrell, was still alive when picked up, but he died before the minesweeper could reach shore.

Frazer, in broken, agonized phrases, related how the grim saga began last Monday at Morehead City, N. C., where the yacht Amphitrite put out for St. Thomas, the Virgin Islands, where the Luttrells lived.

Monday night the yacht sprung a leak. Luttrell changed his course for Charleston. The harbor lights were in sight when high winds and heavy seas hurled the 96-foot craft on a reef.

All nine persons aboard took to the 14-foot lifeboat. But in their haste they forgot to put aboard water and provisions. They tried to maneuver the small craft back to the yacht but heavy seas pushed them back and high tide swept the bobbing boat out to sea. Then followed four days and nights of exposure, hunger and thirst.

When first disabled, Frazer said the Amphitrite could receive radio

McGrath Says He Is Willing to Testify

Washington, Dec. 1 (AP)—Attorney General J. Howard McGrath says he would be "delighted" to testify publicly before a house ways and means subcommittee probing reports of corruption and irregularities in the nation's collection system.

This was his answer last night to demands by two Republican members of the investigating group that he be called for questioning about the justice department's policy in prosecuting tax fraud cases.

Rep. Kean of New Jersey and Byrnes of Wisconsin also said they wanted to ask McGrath about testimony given by T. Lamar Caudle, recently ousted assistant attorney general who directed the justice department's tax fraud prosecutions.

In a statement issued by the department last night, McGrath said he would be delighted to appear before the house committee at any time provided he was given a public hearing.

McGrath added: "It was my belief when I said on Nov. 25 I would give the committee my complete cooperation and would personally direct the department's activities, that the committee would feel free to consult with me on all these matters."

"I am disappointed that this has not been done."

In the Nov. 25 statement to which he referred, McGrath said he would give the committee information on any past case about which it had a complaint.

The subcommittee's hearings, recessed unexpectedly yesterday, are to resume Monday with Caudle scheduled to return for further questioning. He had been in the witness chair all week until yesterday.

President Truman fired Caudle two weeks ago for "outside activities" deemed incompatible with his official duties.

Both Kean and Byrnes said McGrath should be summoned for questioning about testimony relating to a tax fraud case against two New Yorkers, Samuel Aaron and Jacob Freidus. Both were sentenced to jail after an October, 1950, trial.

Adrian Lewand, committee counsel previously had said he had seen anonymous letters in justice department files hinting at an attempted "fix" in the Aaron-Freidus case. He added he was "intensely interested in the situation as it affects justice department tax prosecutions."

Caudle acknowledged in his testimony that he received a $5,000 commission last year on the sale of a $30,000 airplane to Larry Kohn of New York, a private investigator for Aaron and Freidus at the time their tax trial was pending.

McGrath told him it would be a right for him to do so. Caudle said McGrath later said he had proved because Caudle had assured him that the government was not involved in any way.

Kean told reporters he wanted to ask McGrath about the commission adding the attorney general implied that Caudle did tell him all about the payment Caudle, however, said he did partment," he said.

Murry said he was not critical of any particular administration. However, in an earlier speech at Fayetteville, Murry called Gov. McMath's defense of the highway department "about as weak an answer as could have been made."

Gov. McMath said Thursday the highway department is being operated "as efficiently as possible."

signals but his own SOS sign had gone unanswered.

The yacht's skipper and wife Luttrell, was a native of Washington, D. C. He was graduated from West Point in 1934. Later he signed his army commission, entered the construction business, and described by relatives as an adventurous man, had returned this country to pick up the ill-fated Amphitrite, a converted submarine chaser which was in Pacific service during World War II.

His mother, Mrs. S. A. Luttrell, Washington, said she had been "very worried" about the son since they last Hampton Road, Va., for the Virgin Islands. The trip had been delayed by equipment trouble at the very beginning. Along the way, Luttrell had jumped from the lifeboat in desperation two days before small craft was sighted by minesweeper.

Mrs. Luttrell said she "too some insurance" for her son before the party set sail. The insurance expired the day before Amphitrite sank.

The men are being held here on an open charge.
